RCare Hits the Road, Brings In-depth Training on Game-Changing Technologies to Distributors on Multi-City Tour

For Immediate Release:
Webster, NY. - Feb. 12, 2020

RCare, Inc., maker of nurse call and monitoring solutions, announced a four-city roadshow tour, designed to educate their distributors about their expanding product line and the changing senior living market.

"We've been adding important functionality rapidly in the last few years, and that's not going to stop anytime soon," said RCare Founder and CEO Myron Kowal. "The roadshow is diving deep into our new technologies, best practices and latest integrations, such as Inovonics and Alexa".

Understanding senior living communities and their needs is key to customizing a solution that helps caregiving staff provide the highest level of care, while increasing efficiencies. RCare innovations have helped the company provide products to a broader cross-section of the market. Interoperability with other market leading systems, such as electronic medical records, wander management, and even Alexa, has helped make life simpler for administrators and caregivers by reducing redundant data entry and reducing the number of systems to monitor.

"Educating our distributors is critical because we expect them to always offer the best possible solution to our clients," said Kowal.

The RCare Roadshow is a 2-day, in-depth event that is focused on RCare products and the senior living market. The show is making four stops around the country, to provide participants with convenient and interesting travel options: Salt Lake City, Chicago, Austin, and Alexandria. It's being provided free of charge to RCare's distributor network, along with fun optional excursions including a Chicago Bulls game, skiing in the Utah mountains and going to the Pro Rodeo in Austin.
