

RCare Accepts ‘What If’ Challenge at LeadingAge Annual Meeting & Expo

For Immediate Release:

Webster, NY. - Oct. 24, 2019

RCare, Inc., maker of award-winning nurse call and monitoring solutions, will be featured at the LeadingAge Annual Meeting & Expo in San Diego next week. This year's LeadingAge theme is "What If..." RCare will be challenging communities to evaluate their own "what if" statements, in reference to improving quality, resident satisfaction and response times.

RCare will be showcasing their advanced nurse call and remote monitoring technologies as well as some new initiatives, including iCall, RCare's new full-IP wired nurse call system, the HCube for affordable housing, and RCare's new integration with Inovonics hardware. In addition, participants can get a sneak peek at the new RCare Mobile interface with multi-app support, and SafeKeeping, the new integrated engagement app that connects residents, families and clinicians.

Attendees can visit RCare in booth #1624 and learn how to improve response times, increase the quality of care, and guarantee better resident satisfaction. Attendees will also have the opportunity to take photos and post them on Twitter or Facebook with the hashtag #RMan or #RWoman for a chance to win great prizes, including JBL Bluetooth headsets and Go speakers, Amazon Fire TV Sticks, and more. Two grand prize winners will receive a personal pizza party for their co-workers and staff.

"This industry spends countless dollars catering to residents' needs, wants and desires, but we are missing the boat on the most obvious problem: improving response times," said Myron Kowal, CEO of RCare. "Residents expect an immediate response when a button is pressed. It's clear that faster response times lead to better health and safety for residents, better peace of mind and better staff satisfaction."

What if your nurse call system could help you with resident satisfaction? What if it could help with staff retention? What if you it could give you actionable data to help with QAPI? What if it could save your staff time by integrating with other systems you're already using for wander management, door access, or records? What if it could save you money by working with your existing hardware? What if it could bring you powerful features, no matter what your size or budget?

What if your nurse call system could change the way your residents receive care, perceive and experience care? Visit RCare in booth #1624 and take your next step from "what if" to reality.
